More than 150 MWC students and faculty members attended the march on the White House in Washington on Saturday.

About 80 students began their journey to D.C. at 8 a.m. Friday morning in a march up Rte. #1 and were joined by other students and faculty members along the way. The walk terminated at the home of Mrs. Edna Wiggins in Alexandria, where over 100 people camped out for the night on the Wiggins' lawn. Many neighbors brought food for the demonstrators and allowed them to use bathroom facilities, telephones, and televisions in their homes.

The group congregated at Memorial Bridge in D.C. Saturday morning and was joined by more MWC people who had driven to meet them there. They then walked en masse to the Ellipse where most stayed until late afternoon.

In his latest attack on Mary Washington College, local delegate to the Virginia Assembly Ben Woodbridge has written a letter to Governor Linwood Holton condemning the use of College property for anti-war protests.

Also, last week Woodbridge blamed the failure of Mrs. Nixon to visit the city on the "vocal, immature, and shabby minority at Mary Washington College whose action forced the cancellation."
